

Saulius Karosas

Hailing from Lithuania, Saulius Karosas was one of the world's most important car collectors, with a most impressive collection of historic vehicles, including some of the most important pre-War cars in the world.

Establishing one of the most beautiful collections of historic vehicles, Karosas spent years restoring rare cars and true originals to pristine examples of some of the finest historic vehicles in the world, thereby he made a significant contribution to the preservation of the automotive cultural heritage around the world. Karosas was one of the most active, energetic collectors, with restoration facilities in Vilnius, Lithuania, as well as in Worms, Germany.

Karosas was a regular participant in prestigious historic vehicle events. As an example, the Lancia Astura Cabriolet Pininfarina, presented by Saulius Karosas, won the Grand Prize in the Elegance group at the Stefano Ricci Heritage Trophy in Florence in 2018.
